Memo:

re Peking Man relics

4 August 1972 New York Times, front page, at bottom of column 6 (reading from left to right) carried the following two-line ad in 6-point agate type used for want ads:

PEKING MAN. Emp. St. Obs, mtg. Funds
avail.; no questions. Phone C.G.J.--Advt.

This apparently refers to a meeting Christopher G. Janus says he had with a woman on the observation deck of the Empire State Building.

HW: Sent a copy of this to LF, thanking him for his efforts as a result of your inquiry.

FYI the STM went back through about 9 weeks of NYTimes on hand and found no similar entry earlier. Doesn't mean there wasn't one somewhere else in the paper, of course, but there's a limit to what even an STM can do.

This was well-placed, with maximum exposure just below the story du jour on the Bremer trial.
